How can Singapore invest in future Chinese leaders? Tycoon Oei Hong Leong (left) thinks it is important to educate them here. After they study in Singapore, they go back, they will remember how they got their degree. ‘Yesterday, the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, represented by dean Kishore Mahbubani, thanked him for his $7-million donation — matched dollar-for-dollar by the Government — to that end. The money will go to an endowment fund, which will generate income to fund scholarships for students from China.'
