Drumroll for talented kids

ChildAid, an annual showcase of young talent which draws up funds for needy students, returns with more songs and dances.

W
t last year, the kids were back. This time, the kids are back again — and they’ve brought their A-game with them. The annual ChildAid concert was held at the National University of Singapore, drawing a crowd of enthusiastic spectators.

The event, which is held in collaboration with the Ministry of Education, aims to raise funds for underprivileged children in Singapore. This year’s ChildAid concert was themed “Dreams Take Flight”, reflecting the theme of the 2018 Hong Kong International Chinese Film Festival.

The concert featured performances by a variety of young talent, including singers, dancers, and instrumentalists. The performances were held at the University Cultural Centre, and were attended by more than 1,000 spectators.

Children helping children

ChildAid is not just about showcasing talent; it’s also about giving back. This year, ChildAid partnered with the Children’s Cancer Foundation, and the funds raised will be used to support children with cancer.

The concert featured performances by a variety of young talent, including singers, dancers, and instrumentalists. The performances were held at the University Cultural Centre, and were attended by more than 1,000 spectators.

The concert featured performances by a variety of young talent, including singers, dancers, and instrumentalists. The performances were held at the University Cultural Centre, and were attended by more than 1,000 spectators.

From ChildAid to world stage

Over the years, ChildAid has seen many young stars take the stage. They include:

Nathan Hartman, 27

Abigail Sin, 18

Esther Ong, 20

Jaimee Teare, 18

ChildAid has also seen many students who have gone on to pursue further studies or careers in the arts.

References

Contact

ChildAid

Email: info@childaid.com

Phone: +65 12345678

Address: 123 Main Street, Singapore 123456

About

ChildAid is a charity concert held annually in Singapore to raise funds for underprivileged children. The concert is attended by a large audience, and is broadcast on television and online.

---

Awards

Cheah Charoen Awards

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation

Department of Social Services

Ministry of Education

National University of Singapore

---

Cheah Charoen Awards

Cheah Charoen Awards are given annually to outstanding students who have demonstrated exceptional talent and dedication to their studies.

---

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation is a non-profit organization that supports education and scholarship programs for children in Singapore.

---

Department of Social Services

Department of Social Services is a government agency responsible for providing social services to low-income families and individuals in Singapore.

---

Ministry of Education

Ministry of Education is a government department that oversees the education system in Singapore.

---

National University of Singapore

National University of Singapore is a public research university located in Singapore.

---

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation is a non-profit organization that supports education and scholarship programs for children in Singapore.

---

Department of Social Services

Department of Social Services is a government agency responsible for providing social services to low-income families and individuals in Singapore.

---

Ministry of Education

Ministry of Education is a government department that oversees the education system in Singapore.

---

National University of Singapore

National University of Singapore is a public research university located in Singapore.

---

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation is a non-profit organization that supports education and scholarship programs for children in Singapore.

---

Department of Social Services

Department of Social Services is a government agency responsible for providing social services to low-income families and individuals in Singapore.

---

Ministry of Education

Ministry of Education is a government department that oversees the education system in Singapore.

---

National University of Singapore

National University of Singapore is a public research university located in Singapore.

---

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation

Cheah Charoen Charitable Foundation is a non-profit organization that supports education and scholarship programs for children in Singapore.

---

Department of Social Services

Department of Social Services is a government agency responsible for providing social services to low-income families and individuals in Singapore.

---

Ministry of Education

Ministry of Education is a government department that oversees the education system in Singapore.